PINOT GRIGIO Friuli Colli Orientali_DOC

Complex and harmonic wine, blending sapidity to the freshness of citrus notes as proof of its great length.

This very important grape variety from Burgundy, derived from a mutation of Pinot Noir, was introduced into Friuli Venezia Giulia in the early 1800s, as an analysis of the Ruländer – Pineau gris dates it back to 1847. At the Austrian Oenological Congress, held in Gorizia, its diffusion was recommended "wherever the aim is to produce fine white wines of the highest order" and in 1896 it was found, together with Pinot Blanc, among the common grapes imported into Friuli. It prefers cool environments and has found its natural habitat in the northernmost hills of the Friuli Colli Orientali DOC area. It is certainly the most renowned Friulian wine in the world, as it has been enjoying considerable success for a long time.

Grapes. Pinot Grigio
